

Girl #26 (Age 10)

So you might ask "what does Christmas mean to me?" Well this is what I say.

People might say it's the warm eggnog, hot cocoa, playing in the snow, or opening presents on Christmas Day. That is just half of what Christmas means to me. I think spending the time with your family is what Christmas means to me. Have you seen people's faces when someone sees someone they haven't seen in months or even years? It's like a kid in a candy store or they feel this warm feeling in their heart. But some kids can't feel that feeling because they don't have those special people in their life, so remember next time you feel like you have nothing, remember the ones who really don't have anything. Maybe this Christmas say how much you love your family. That's what Christmas means to me and I hope that's enough for you to understand what Christmas actually means.
