Princess #19

What christmas means to me is families gather together, they are happy, They are kind, they give instead of just getting, and people are mery. But the most important thing is Jesus Christ's birthday. I think this because it is (in my opinion)important to celebrate Jesus Christ's birth day because he created us, he died for us, and he is our heavenly brother and without him we would not be who we are today. When I hear the word "Christmas" I think of the word "Christ" and then "M.A.S" and one tradition that we do in our family is the "M.A.S" jars. What this is, is jars that have the M A S letters one on the top of each jar. What we say it stands for is "Christ's Many Acts of Service' ' so every time we do an act of service we put a pompom in one jar and every time we fill one jar up we get to do something fun as a family. Also it teaches us to be more christ like and we do more service. Yes I know you are going to say "that is bribing" but it makes it more fun and we are more willing to do service. So when it comes to Christmas time we mainly celebrate Christ's birthday and some other fun things too, but mostly Jesus christ. This is what christmas means to me.
